CITY AND DISTRICT. FOR SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.

Organization of an Alliance to Fur-ther the Movement.

The movement which was started some two years ago among the women of this city in favor of stricter observance of Sunday, so far as social affairs are concerned, resulted in the formation of an organiza tion, which is known as the "Woman's Sabbath Alliance of the District of Columbia." The second annual meeting will be held Friday morning at 11 o'clock in the Church of the Covenant. Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe will preside, and addresses will be delivered by Rev. Alexander Mackay-Smith, D.D.: Mrs. Wellington White of New York and others. Mrs. White, who is well known as an eloquent and interesting speaker, will conduct a series of meetings here in the interest of Sunday observance. Tomorrow morning, at 11 o'clock, she will deliver an address at the residence of Mrs. Senator Mitchell. Thursday morning at 11 o'clock she will speak at the New York Avenue Church, and the following morning, as stated above, she will attend the annual meeting of the alliance and de-liver an address. She will also speak at a meeting which will be held at Calvary Baptist Church Saturday afternoon at 3

The officers of the alliance are as follows: Miss Morton, president; Mrs. Teunis S. Hamlin, first vice president; other vice presidents: Mrs. John W. Foster, Mrs. Hoke Smith, Mrs. Shelby M. PRELIMINARY PLANS

The Washington Horse Show Getting in Promising Shape.

Judges Secured for the Hackney and Roadster Classes-Arrangements for the Public.

President F. C. Stevens of the Washington horse show has called a meeting of the executive committee for tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, at which several important matters will be considered, and the manner in which the boxes will be disposed of be determined. There will be seventy odd boxes surrounding the promenade and fronting the exhibition ring, each capable of comfortably seating six occupants. The central boxes on the east and west of the ring will be placed at $60 for the four days, and the remainder at $50. Members' badges and ladies' season badges, entitling holders to admission at all times during the exhibition, a seat in the members' box and to all the privileges of the show, have been placed at $5 a badge. General admission will be 50 cents, with reserved seats 50 cents extra. Season tickets, entitling holders to admission and reserved seats during the entire show, will be sold for $8. The executive committee will decide when these privileges will be put on sale at tomorrow's as the best horsewomen in the country, and nearly every fashionable woman in New York who rides horseback has receiv-New York who rides horseback has received instruction from them.

Manager Field will go to New York Thursday night to attend the Durland horse show, to be held at the Durland Riding Academy, West Central Park. Mr. Field expects to meet there a number of exhibitors who intend to participate in the Washington horse show, and will doubtless bring back a large number of entries.

The Judge of the Hackneys.

Mr. Robert Graham of Claremont, Ont. the widely known expert in judging hackneys, has kindly consented to act as the judge of the hackney classes, and Mr. Hamilton Busbey of New York has consented to officiate as judge in the roadstor, s well as the trotting, classes.

Manager Field has received assurances that a large delegation of Pittsburg ladies and gentlemen will come on to visit the show, remembering the great success and entertainment afforded at the Pittsburg horse show, which Mr. Field managed, and which was the first event of its kind in that city. The colors of the show will be red and white, and the decorations of Convention Hall, the drapping of the will be red and white, and the decorations of Convention Hall, the draperies of the boxes and the general adornment will be in these colors. The manager and the clerks at horse show headquarters are kept busy answering inquiries about stable accommodations from prospective exhibitors, and replying to requests for other information bearing upon the show. The letters to such effect show that there is general interest aroused among horsemen south east terest aroused among horsemen south, east, north and in the middle west, and inquiries from well-known people in the leading citier regarding boxes, badges, etc., indi-cate as much interest in society circles as

Penalty Imposed Upon Him for Striking a Woman.

Matthew McCully, a constable, was today fined $5 by Judge Scott for striking Mrs. Ellen D. Williams. Mr. Oscar Nauck defended the accused.

The case grew out of the events which receded the alleged attempted shooting of Mr. C. E. Shreeve, a real estate agent, Thursday evening last by William H. Williams, husband of the prosecutrix. According to the statements of the witnesses Mr. McCully, with three colored men, went to the former home of the Williamses for the purpose of ejecting them for the non-payment of rent. After reaching the house a quarrel ensued, and Mr. McCully, it was afleged, struck Mrs. Williams and choked her husband.

Mrs. Anna Rosen, one of the witnesse for the government, stated that she heard Mr. Williams say: "Don't you dare strike my wife again." She also saw Mrs. Williams almost fall from the front porch from the result, apparently, of being pushed.

The defense denied that any assault whatever was committed by Mr. McCully and claimed that after some words between the constable and Mr. and Mrs. Williams the latter were led out of the house, where-upon Williams left the premises, saying .2 would get his pistol and kill the constable, his assistants and Mr. Shreeve, who or-dered the ejectment of the restition of dered the ejectment of the parties to be made. While Mr. Williams was absent it was alleged the constable and his assist ants placed the furniture on the street, and at once left the premises.

As was stated in The Star Friday last, Williams later the same day went to Mr. Shreeve's office and tried to kill him, and is in jail awaiting the action of the grand

A MAGAZINE FOR MOTHERS.

Outgrowth of the National Congress Held in This City.

A year ago the national congress of mothers was started in this city and at once developed into a great national movement, having for its objects the establishment of mothers' clubs throughout the country, and the consideration of all matters pertaining to childhood and mother hood. One result of this organization is the Mother's Magazine, designed to work along the same lines as the congress and to disseminate the most valuable and instructive information of use to mothers.

The magazine is published in New York, and the initial number just issued contains 140 pages of handsomely illustrated articles of special interest to mothers, and also of the property interest to unmarried women, and even the children havs many pages of mat-ter devoted to their edification. The maga-zine has a handsome lithographed cover. A portrait of the late Nancy Allison Mc-Kinley, mother of the President, surround-ed by a wreath of laurel in gold, forms the frontisnice.

AID OF THE BLIND.

Executive Committee of the Associa-tion Holds a Meeting.

The executive committee of the Aid Association for the Blind met yesterday at the office of the Association, 1607 O street. The president, Mrs. John Russell Young, called the meeting to order and then requested the vice president, Mrs. A. G. Brackett, to preside. Reports were heard regarding aid rendered to, and temporary omes procured for, the sightless.

The president named as a permanent committee on printing Mrs. H. P. R. Holt, Mrs. Mary M. North and Mrs. Mary E.

AMUSEMENTS. LAFAYETTE SQUARE OPERA HOUSE.

-Whatever John Philip Sousa does is of interest in Washington. This is his native city. It was here he commenced his musical education, and here he served his apprenticeship in the United States Marine Band, which he subsequently conducted with such signal ability that his position as leader of that organization was the direct line of promotion to his present standing as the greatest band master in this country, if not in the world. Washington is proud of Sousa and is always ready to do him honor. It was for this that Manager Albaugh decorated the auditorium of the Lafayette Square Opera House last even-ing, on the occasion of the first represen-tation here of Sousa's latest successful opera, "The Bride-Elect." This opera has been warmly praised in critical Boston. been warmly praised in critical Boston, where it had its first production, and where it had an extended run, and in Philwhere it had an extended run, and in Fini-adelphia, where it was equally successful. Its most popular number, "The Bride-Elect March," has been heard by band and or-chestra, so that it has become familiar, and after the great success of "El Capitan" Mr. Sousa's friends were greatly interested in this later production. Consequently last in this later production. Consequently, last night the Lafayette was filled with the representative people of the national capital. Every seat was occupied, and most of the standing room was filled with those of the standing room was filled with those who could get only "general admission."

The producers of "The Bride-File:t" have performed their full duty. The scenery is elaborate, the costumes are gorgeous, the properties are appropriate and the large, comely and well-shaped chorus has been thoroughly drilled in all the requirements of stage business. The opera is more sumptuously mounted than any production that has been here this season and many of the has been here this season and many of the stage pictures were greeted with loud ap-plause. In this opera Sousa has not only written the music, but the book and the lyrics also, in doing which he has displayed the versatility of his accomplishments. In the score he has given some of his best writing. His concerted and chorus music has always been all right, but his ballads have been his weakest work. In this op-era, however, Mr. Sousa has written two ballads, the tenor solo at the opening of the second act and the legend of the "Snow Baby," that are worthy of high praise. There is also a dramatic song for the soprano, the card song, excellently sung by Miss Nella Bergen, that is remarkably ef-fective. In this act, which, by the way, is the best, musically speaking, there is also a dainty waltz duet between tenor and soprano, an invocation sung by Miss Bergen and chorus, a well worked up sextet and the march chorus, "Unchain the Dogs of War," with which the act closes. The first act is picturesque in its setting and serves to introduce all the principals, the king making his entrance on a donkey in a very effective way. In the last act the complications are satisfactorily worked out, and a topical sorg is introduced that, if the audience could have had its way, might have been running yet.

The cast is a competent one, and includes
Miss Nella Bergen, Miss Christine MacDonald, Mabella Baker, Albert Hart, Melville
Stewart, Frank Pollock, Chas. H. Drew and Harry Luckstone, all of whom seem to enter into the spirit of their work and the most of whom sing well. Miss Bergen's voice has broadened out and she sings in more dramatic style then when she was first heard in "El Capitan," while she has developed into an effective actress. Christie MacDonald is dainty and pleasing in all her work, and she won a deserved encore for her singing of "The Snow Baby." Melror ner singing of "The Snow Baby." Mel-ville Stuart's rich baritone voice has not as much play as one could desire, but he sings all that is allotted to him in good form and acts well. Frank Pollock has a tenor that has some sweet notes in the up-per register, but his medium tones are cold per register, but his medium tones are cold and rasping, and he can't act a little bit, but that is the usual fault with operatic tenors. On Albert Hart rests the burden of the fun, and that elongated comedian reminds one very forcibly of De Wolf Hopper. whom he has evidently taken as his model. He certainly caught the house last night, for his efforts were loudly applauded and his work was fully as good as he did and his work was fully as good as he did in "Wang." Charles Drew and Harry Luckstone were interesting as second comedians, although they did not have a great deal to do. The work of the chorus, both vocally and as to its stage business, cannot be too highly commended.

COLUMBIA THEATER.—Leon Herrmann, nephew of the late Prof. Herrmann, appeared for the first time before a Washington gathering last night, and, judging from his reception, he is destined to gain the hold on the American people so long maintained by his uncle. He is equally deft in legerdemain, and has shown considerable ingenuity in preparing and operating mechanical devices. Associated with him was Mme. Herrmann, whose graceful figure was so long a welcome feature of the late Prof. Herrmann's entertainments. The entertainment of magic is divided into two parts—that introducing elaborate machinery and that depending on quickness of manipulation. The latter were probably the more popular, for while many might have theories for the former, only superlative skill could explain the other. The decapitation scene, in which a man's head was cut off in view of the audience, was so cleverly given that notwithstanding the knowledge that it was an illusion, an involuntary shiver swept over the spectators. Equally inexplicable, though more pleasing, was the artist's dream, when the portrait of a pretty maiden was suddenly transformed into winsome little Dot Robin son. Mme. Herrmann's beautiful studies of grace and light-it is hardly correct to call them dances—are an entertainment in themselves. Although to Loie Fuller is due the credit of their invention, Mme. Herrmann has developed them to such an ex-tent as to deserve equal credit. Nothing finer than her portrayal of a flame leaping up from the stage has ever been pre-sented. Throughout the audience followed the performance with deep interest and frequent applause. The attendance was very large, and the satisfaction manifested was an indication of excellent business during the week. NEW NATIONAL THEATER.—"What Happened to Jones," George H. Broad-hurst's farce, last evening entered upon its second engagement here this season, and the enjoyment of the large audience was no less than that with which the play was witnessed last December. The charm of the piece is the naturalness of the situations, there being no straining for enects, and the fun running as steadily throughout the three acts and as uninterruptedly as a mountain stream. The result is that the complications in which Jones, delightfully complications in which Jones, delightfully portrayed by George C. Boniface, jr., constantly finds himself are seemingly neverending, and as laughable as they are surprising. The feature of the cast, which is a remarkably even and consistent one, was Miss Mattle Ferguson's picture of Helma, a Swedish servant girl, her quiet humor being irresistible. George Ober, as Prof. Goodly, and Reuben Fox, as his brother, the Bishop of Ballarat, were very clever. Miss Anna Belmont, as Cissy, was as pretty as she was vivacious, while Mrs. E. A ty as she was vivacious, while Mrs. E. A. Eberle, as the maiden aunt, added much to the fun. The play is full of fun, bright conversation, and insures a delightful even-ing to all who may desire to know "What Happened to Jones."

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.-Mr. Joe Ott is ne of the comedians who have establi themselves on such personal terms of jovial familiarity that the public would not tolraminarity that the public would not tolerate the assumption of unaccustomed dignities. Most actors of his popularity and success would long since have been tempted to record on the program the announcement that "Mr. Joseph Ott presents," etc. But it is the same, strictly informal "Joe Ott," and, by the way, the same play, that the public has approved for years. The audience was one whose expectations were obviously high. It was on the alert to give Mr. Ott "a reception," and although he did no more on his entrance than put his head through the door and then disappear, it was enough. The audience took its cue, and the comedian was assured that he was in the hands of friends. No actor could have been more highly complimented in a personal way than he was. They laughed at his witticisms without discriminating as to novelty or antiquity, and when he dropped the lower left-hand corner of his mouth and sang parodies his mannerisms excited a fascination which Melba or Campanari in a farce-comedy cast might easily fail to exert. erate the assumption of unaccustomed dignerisms excited a fascination which Melba or Campanari in a farce-comedy cast might easily fall to exert. A great deal of respect to humorous traditions is manifested in the piece, although "The Star Gazer" is not sufficiently powerful or concise to permit the "story of the play" to become an oppressive remembrance. The company is a talented one especially in dancing. Mr. Phil Ott and Mr. Matt Ott display the energy and enthusiass to be expected when the family credit is to be maintained. Miss Montrose and Miss Beatrice Bonner are among the ladies whose vivacious efforts were applauded. One of the most approved features of the program was the series of imitations on the plano by the company's clever musicals director, Mr. John St. George.

Jcseph Arthur's meledrama, furnished entertainment last night for an audience that filled every seat in the Grand Opera. House. The play is one that is thoroughly familiar to all theater-goers, and yet it rever seems to lose its heart interest and continues to hold its own with newer works. The story of the play is well known, and it may only be said that the company that presented it last night was, in the main, a competent one, and brought out every point in the production that might add to its attractiveness. The play has been refitted with new scenery, and might add to its attractiveness. The play has been refitted with new scenery, and was in every way an enjoyable presentation. The cast is headed by W. P. Carleton, as Perry Bascom, who makes a much more acceptable hero than is generally found in company with such plays. His work and that of Ben D. Deane, as the political boss and manager, was thoroughly enjoyable. The other male members of the cast who achieved distinction in one way or another wero Charles Thropp, as Ben Boone, a most forgivable villain, whose Ben Boone, a most forgivable villain, whose worst trait is giving way to his passions; Theo. T. Rook, who makes up as a realistic village cobbler; Tote Ducrow as Jim Tutewiler, the supposed ministerial son, and Wm. Crancall as Isaac Hankins. The female parties of the set was the female parties. female portion of the cast was as accepta-ble as the male, two of the members, Miss Frances Marion Ballou and Miss Nettie Frances Marion Ballou and Miss Nettie Bourne, achieving a distinct success in their respective parts, June, the poor house waif and heroire, and Sue Eudaly, the unrepenting female villain. The work of both was natural, and, indeed, in this respect the work of the entire cast may be commended. Miss Lorsa Thorne as Samanthea Hankirs, Miss Leigh Starr as Nell Tutewiler, Miss Margaret Rice as the wife of the village cobbler and Miss Amy Hoey as the German maid-of-all-work were also highly acceptable. Last, but not least, should be mentioned Little Nel, who appears as the heroine's daughter. During the action of the play the Hoosier Quintet secured hearty applause for its fine singing, while the old village band, the "Rising Sun Roarers," also made a hit.

KERNAN'S LYCEUM THEATER.-Fred Rider's Night Owls company entertained large audiences at Kernan's yesterday, at large audiences at Kernan's yesterday, at both the afternoon and evening performances. This is the second anticarance of the show in Washington, and it was the universal verdict that it had been greatly strengthmel since it opened early in the season. Several new acts have been added. The opening burlesque, "Punch," was not as strong as it might be. Bobby Ralston, however, was very funny and his diminutive form and curious wabbly legs put the audience into convulsions of laughter. The burlesque is continued at the end of the performance and materially improves. In burlesque is continued at the end of the performance and materially improves. In the last part several well-arranged dances are executed by the company. The olio is, generally speaking, good. In parts it is strong. The Leon Sisters were especially clever in their acrobatic specialty, executing difficult feats with grace and precision. The ten minutes with Waller and Waller devoted to entertainment were all enjoyed. levoted to entertainment were all enjoyed Both are clever comedians and good mu-sicians. The World's Trio had everything their way when it came to applause and scored a hit Charles Falke, a tenor of considerable ability, flustrated his songs and proved himself easily the best of his kind ever seen here. RESULT OF A ROW.

Party of Young Men Arraigned for Disorderly Conduct.

A party of young people hired a vehicle last night and drove from South Washington to Florida avenue northeast, near 14th street, where they surprised some friends. There were so many masqueraders in the party that some of them were obliged to go in another house, so that two dances were being enjoyed at the same time. French Wood was one of the young men of the 'bus party, but for some reason James Jackson, James Johnson and James Ballenger were anxious to get him out of the house. French was being roughly handled when Policemen Ehlers and Vanderwalker when Policemen Ehlers and Vanderwalker appeared. It was their opinion that the row was the result of jealousy, but the three men declared they only wanted to give him a drink. Ballenger had a pistol and he threatened to arrest the entire party, but Miss Brown asserted that he had not the necessary authority. It was while the men were engaged in the struggle on the sidewalk that the policemen appeared and arrested the quartet.

Hazzard and Mrs. Hancock was followed by the following program: Address, Senator F. J. Cannon; soprano solo, Miss Xarifa Hancock; violin selection, Miss Florence King; recitation, Mr. J. J. Harrower; soprano solo, Mrs. J. J. Costinett; baritone solo, Mr. F. A. Rebstock; soprano solo, Miss D. Myrtille Dexter; recitation, Mrs. J. D. Roberts; soprano solo, Mrs. H. C. James; baritone solo, Mr. J. M. Rieman. Mrs. W. H. Hazard served as planist.
Senator Cannon made a patriotic address, in which he alluded to the large number of the republics of the world which were children of our revolution. A large and interested audience was in attendance.

Six Little Tailors.

The Six Little Tailors, at 941 Pennsylvania avenue, have opened one of the handsomest lines of spring suitings in the city and are making a specialty of spring suits at $15.50. In this line there are hundreds of pretty designs from which to make selections. Their fancy vest designs are "beauties." On the whole, it would be hard to find a more complete line in the city, and the prices of all will suit the most economical purchaser, while the clothes themselves would please the most Coughsand Colds.

The New Treatment

By Which They are Cured in a Few Hours.

IT IS GUARANTEED

A cold generally comes on with sneezing, dryness of the nose and threat, followed by a cough, which at first is dry, but afterwards the sputa becomes thick and yellowish as the cold breaks up. With the cough comes soreness of the breast and pain in the limbs and head. Sometimes the cold is accompanied by feverish symptoms, quick pulse, irritable cough, and at other times with dryness in the throat, producing pain, and difficult swallowing.

THE CURE.—If you are suffering from a cold, or there is inflammation of the mucous membrane, "HYOMEI" will give you immediate relief and insure a perma sent cure in a few hours. You have only to follow the directions that accompany each Pocket Inhaler Gutfit and you can break up a cold over right with no effort on your part beyond the natural set of breathing. In fact, coughs and colds cannot exist where "HYOMEI" is used. It is the only rational treatment ever known. No sprays, douches, atomizers or stomach medicines; just air, nothing but air, impregnated with the healing principles of "HYOMEI" as it passes through the Inhaler.
